The 20-minute play about Joe and Mary, workshops available, audience response, and the impact of the show are described. The story centers on Joe, who has many sexual encounters without the protection of condoms. He contracts HIV infection and transmits it to his wife Mary, who transmits it to her unborn baby. Scenes portray Joe receiving the news from his doctor, and Mary and Harry as a friend caring for the dying Joe. The scenes reflect compassion for the sick and debunk fears of casual contact as a means of HIV transmission. There are 2 sizes of puppets, hand puppets and puppets 2m tall. The faces of puppets are grey to depict the universality of the disease. The narrator tells the story along with background music. A condom demonstration is given and literature is distributed after the performance. A question and answer (Q and A) period is provided.

Through his films, he has succeeded in creating a stunningly coherent body of mini-masterpieces -- sensuous, outrageous, provocative and disturbing. The genius of Svankmajer is in his use of a wide assortment of techniques and crafts in his animated universe; expressed through clay, painting, puppets, trick photography and a crazy assortment of objects, food shots, living creatures and cartoons. This is the first in a series of cassettes presenting the work of this great Czechoslovakian filmmaker.

CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	ALFR HOOS TRAG 1999	Tape, Magnetic	Alfred Hoos' the tragical history of Jackson Pollock, abstract expressionist : as performed by Yannis Philaretos.	The Tragical Hostory of Jackson Pollack, Abstract Expressionist is the work of Alfred Hoos, performed here by his disciple Yanis Philaretos. Both Hoos and Philaretos are fictional characters whose creator, writer and director Apostsolos Doxiadis, has here provided all the missing links from fiction to reality. The work combines storytelling and puppetry in a muscial form to tell the life-story of the great modern painter Jackson Pollock; his childhood in Cody, Wyoming, his early years in New York and apprenticeship at the Art Students' Leaguel his being discovered by the extravagant Peggy Guggenheim; the creation of his own, characteristic 'dripping; style; his struggle with alcoholism and his tragic death. Combining humor and pathos in the tradition of folk theatrical aesthetics, the Tragical History recounts Pollock's rise from anonymity and notoriety to posthumous fame bringing forth the archaic elements in this, quintessentially modern life.

CPA Archive: Film: North and Central America	ANTI ARKT DVD 2007	Videodisc, Digital	Anti-Arktikos	Combing live and stop action, puppets and children, 'Anti-Arktikos' follows the adventures of a young girl "Momo" and her penguin friend "Pipi", in a land first identified by early Greek geographers. Believing that a large continent existed at the "bottom" of the world to balance the land they knew about, early Greeks named this place 'Anti-Arktikos'. Constructed primarily out of paper, puppets and set pieces are brought vividly to life through the camera work of Jarrod Whaley and the soundscape created by musicians Dennis Palmer and Bob Stagner. Based on a dream by the artist herself, Judith Mogul has created a fantastical landscape of paper sculpted glaciers, inhabited by demons, shamons and a skeptical colony of penguins. Multiple layers of reality coexist, as we travel from two to three dimensional animation and storytelling.

CPA Archive: Film: Asian	AS IN WADE FIRE 2001	Tape, Magnetic		Borrowed Fire	Borrowed Fire is a clear and poetic documentation of tol pava kuttu, the shadow theatre of Kerala, India. The film communicates the cultural context of the theatre and documents its changes in this generation, focusing on pulavar (master puppeteer) Krishankutty and his sons, whose work has been discussed in Friedrich Seltmann's Schattenspiel in Kerala (1986) and Stuart Blackburn's Inside the Drama-House (1996). The film begins with the founding myth of the theatre: the goddess Badra Kali (Durga) was unable to see the actual events of the Ramayana because she was busy fighting the buffalo-headed demon. As a result, a shadow-play version of the epic must be performed annually at her shrines as entertainment for the goddess. SCENE IV - "Wakigahama Hobiki No Dan" (At Wakigahama Beach) A mysterious young man requests that Midaroku, a stone-mason living at Mikage erect a gravestone to the memory of Atsumori. After the task is completed, the man disappears, and it is concluded that he was the ghost of Atsumori. SCENE V -- "Kumagai Jinya No Dan" (Kumagai's Camp) Kumagai is in shock over having murdered his own son, thinking it was Atsumori. He presents his son's head to Yoshitsune who recognizes it as the sons, but declares it to be Atsumori's. Atsumori, who is still alive and hidden in a chest, is to be smuggled back to safety by Midaroku (aka Munekiyo). From the Tale of Genji -- A piece adapted from "Genji Monogatari," a classic work of Japanese literature attributed to the Japanese noblewoman Murasaki Shikibu in the early eleventh century. The work recounts the life of a son of a Japanese emperor, known to readers as Hikaru Genji, or "Shining Genji". For political reasons, Genji is relegated to commoner status (by being given the surname Minamoto) and begins a career as an imperial officer. The tale concentrates on Genji's romantic life and describes the customs of the aristocratic society of the time. 2. Princess Kaguya -- An adaptation of "Taketori Monogatari" ("The Tale of the Bamboo Cutter"), also known as "Kaguya Hime" ("The Tale of Princess Kaguya"), a 10th century Japanese folktale. It is considered the oldest extant Japanese narrative and an early example of proto-science fiction. It primarily details the life of a mysterious girl called Kaguya-hime, who was discovered as a baby inside the stalk of a glowing bamboo plant. She is said to be from Tsuki-no-Miyako ("The Capital of the Moon") and has unusual hair that shines like the moon.

Unfortunately, she has already begun a relationship with Prince Niou, Genji's grandson. Distraught over the situation, she attempts to commit suicide by drowning. She is rescued and retires to a convent. The tale ends when Ukifune refuses to see her brother who has a note from Kaoru and Kaoru suspects Niou has in fact spirited her away. "Ukifune" refers to a drifting boat that metaphorically recalls life's haunting uncertainties. The film, a permanent attraction of the Genji Monogatari Museum in Uji, Kyoto, was directed by the famous Masahiro Shinoda and incorporates forty-seven dolls created and operated by Hiroshi Hori.

Set in Osaka in the 18th century, the film centers on the doomed romance between Jihei (Kichiemon Nakamura), a down and out married paper merchant passionately in love with doe-eyed courtesan Koharu (Shima Iwashita), whom he cannot afford to buy out of servitude. Koharu herself has also fallen in love with Jihei; she even starts turning away other patrons to be with him. Their love is further imperiled by Tahei (Hosei Komatsu), a rich, obnoxious merchant who flaunts his ability to buy Koharu's indenture. Suicide is the only way for the two to be together. Jihei's wife Osan (also played by Iwashita) senses the couple's intent and writes Koharu a letter pleading for his life. Touched by the sincerity of the letter, Koharu feigns reservations with killing herself, prompting Jihei to tearfully renounce her. Later, as Jihei skulks about the house as his wife runs the family business, he overhears that Tahei has at last bought his former lover's contract. Knowing that Koharu would just as soon kill herself, Osan -- the ideal of the dutiful wife -- offers Jihei her kimonos to pawn to save her husband's lover. Just as everything seems to be working out for the better, Osan's misinformed father bursts in just before Jihei is about to leave. The enraged old man cannot believe that Jihei is sacrificing his family for a prostitute and drags Osan away, demanding a divorce over Osan's protestations. Later, Jihei and Koharu--together at last--steal into the night, cut their hair -- absolving them from societal obligations -- and make love all night in a graveyard before they commit double suicide. CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	BEAT SPIR CHRI 1991	Tape, Magnetic	Spirit of Christmas, The	This is a Pre-Henson tour de force of two classic Christmas stories performed entirely in marionettes. The first story is "Twas the Night Before Christmas," the second is "The Greatest Story Ever Told, The Nativity." Both stories are beautifully recited and are staged with musical backgrounds in classic and traditional style. The marionettes created for this 50s TV Christmas classic probably represented the cutting edge of creativity in puppeteering at the time and may have provided inspiration for future successes like Howdy Doody, Kukla Fran and Ollie, and much later, the Jim Henson family of characters. These classic Christmas tales will be enjoyed by young and old alike. Children will discover them anew and adults will rediscover the warmth and charm of these classics. A Christmas must see!

While the others search the entire museum for Big Bird, he and Snuffy befriend Egyptian Prince Sahu, who has been trying to solve a riddle for more than 4,000 years so that he can finally join his parents. The boy prince claims to be under a spell cast by Osiris, the Lord of the Underworld, and asks Big Bird and Snuffy to help him find the answer to the question, "Where does today meet yesterday?" The three wander throughout the museum searching for clues from ancient Egyptian drawings, while the others examine masterpieces and art objects.
CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	CURT WAR CANO 1914	Tape, Magnetic	In the Land of the War Canoes: A Drama of Kwakiutl Life in the Northwest	Best known as one of the premiere photographers of the 20th century, Edward S. Curtis devoted his life ot documenting the disappearing world of the American Indian. In this film, originally titled "In the Land of the Headhunters", Curtis retold a tribal story of love and revenge among the Kwakiutl Indians of Vancouver Island. Curtis spent three years with the Kwakiutl to meticulously recreate their way of life before the white man came. In addition to the magnificent painted war canoes of the title, the film features wonderful native costumes, dancing and rituals - including a powerful scene of a vision quest. In 1972, the only surviving print of this film was carefully restored and an original score of music and chants was recorded by the Kwakiutls themselves. This version has now been restored by Milestone onto video using the most modern technology. Although some of the material suffers from nitrate damage due to its age, "In the Land of the War Canoes" still presents a magnificent image of a lost world.

They hollered those words back repeatedly to the colorful puppets animating on top of a 6-foot-plus wall (tall enough so the puppeteers behind the wall didn't have to crouch as they thrust their arms high in the air to give life to those lively pieces of colored cloth and foam). "The Disney Crew" was a puppet show using Muppet-like human puppet characters, catchy tunes and student participation to help children understand the dangers of substance abuse. The show debuted in Orlando in 1991 sponsored by Walt Disney World Community Relations. CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	DVD.0005	Videodisc, Digital	Puphedz: The Tattle-Tale Heart	Two versions of The Tattle-Tale Heart. Welcome to the Puphedz theatre of the macabre. A zany troupe of wooden puppet actors, they journey forth in their ramshackle theatre-on-wheels bringing you outrageous versions of classic tales of terror. In this first outing, they perform a take on Edgar Allen Poe's "The Tell-Tale Heart." It is the story of a young man driven to madness by his unnatural and torturous obsession with the deformed eye of the old man with whom he lives. Of course, it shouldn't be assumed that they live together for any other reason than saving rent money. Be warned, the Puphedz are students of the Grand Guignol school of theatre. A healthy amount of sappy puppet blood drips between the laughter. The principle performers in this installment are Woodrow J. Larchbottom, III, who plays the tormented young man: Peter Feidwood, who provides a suitably cantankerous performance as the old man: Douglas "Chip" Fir, lending his gluttonous talents to Policeman #1; and Leif Applebaum, setting the stage afire with his portrayal of vacuous Policeman #2. So, keep a weather eye out for the approach of the Puphedz cart. When you see the snaggletoothed smile of the cart puller, you'll know you're in for a fun time with the Puphedz performers.

CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	DVD.0080	Videodisc, Digital	Best of the Howdy Doody Show: 20 Original Episodes, The	"The Howdy Doody Show" remains known by a generation of (now grown) kids who remember Buffalo Bob's greeting -- "Say, kids. What time is it?" -- and, the answer: "It's Howdy Doody Time" that came from the approximately 40 kids that squeezed each day into the studio's "peanut gallery." "The Howdy Doody Show" set numerous benchmarks for television. It was the first network kids show to air five days a week, the first show on the air each day (it was preceded by the network's color pattern), the first television show ever broadcast in color, and the first show ever to air more than 1,000 continuous episodes. While Howdy and his friends entertained American children, they also sold television sets to American parents and demonstrated the potential of the new medium to advertisers. With the assistance of NBC Universal Television executives, Mill Creek Entertainment has lovingly reassembled 20 of the most requested episodes of this iconic series that captivated generations of families. This is the first of many collections to reintroduce America's most beloved children's show to kids young and old. 				1909 to the end of Japan's fifty-year occupation of Taiwan in 1945, this remarkable true story captures the puppetmaster's hardships as well as the tragic sweep of the war-torn era. Masterfully directed by internationally acclaimed filmmaker Hou Hsiao-hsien (Flowers of Shanghai, A Time to Live and a Time to Die), the film skillfully weaves Li's recollections with dramatic reenactments of the fateful chapters in his life. The portrait that emerges reflects the emotionally complex state of Chinese society during the first half of the twentieth century.

It echoes the whispers and murmurings of earlier times. Mur-Mur (The Walls) speaks of the friendships among two teenage couples and a pesky and incorrigible younger brother. With humour and sheer innocence, these five characters are swept up in an air-bound acrobatic ballet. Their flirting, teasing and fearlessness become a moving and scintillating reflection of a very special time in life, a world of young love and discovery. Dialogue is kept to a bare minimum, leaving way to soaring and explosive gymnastics. Telling of quarrels, shared schemes and stolen kisses, the acrobatic choreography allows the performers to unleash their energy as well as their acrobatic virtuosity in the exploration of the exuberant eloquence of movement.

CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	FOX PUPP MAST 1993	Tape, Magnetic	Puppetmaster, The	Based on the actual memoirs of Li Tien-lu, Taiwan's most celebrated puppeteer and official "national treasure," The Puppeteer tells the epic tale of one man's struggle against seemingly insurmountable adversary. Spanning the years from Li's birth in 1909 to the end of Japan's fifty-year occupation of Taiwan in 1945, this remarkable true story captures the puppetmaster's hardships as well as the tragic sweep of the war-torn era. Masterfully directed by internationally acclaimed filmmaker Hou Hsiao-hsien (Flowers of Shanghai, A Time to Live and a Time to Die), the film skillfully weaves Li's recollections with dramatic reenactments of the fateful chapters in his life. The portrait that emerges reflects the emotionally complex state of Chinese society during the first half of the twentieth century.

CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	HALL MAKI ODYS 1997	Tape, Magnetic	Making of the Odyssey	How did they do that! In this riveting documentary, viewers of the epic production of The Odyssey are taken behind the scenes to witness first-hand just how it all happened. There are interviews with director Andrei Konchalovsky, and with many of the miniseries' actors, including Armand Assante, Greta Scacchi, Isabella Rossellini, Geraldine Chaplin and Vanessa Williams. Several key scenes are examined in detail; for example, the massive battle of Troy is analyzed at all angles -- as director Konchalovsky explains to his army of actors and technicians his vision of how the scene should look. We also the the "Konchalovsky touch" at work on a more intimate level, as he coaches Greta Scacchi, Irene Papas and Geraldine Chaplin. Production began on The Odyssey in Turkey October 14, 1996. Five weeks later the entire company was airlifted on three chartered jets to Malta. On December 5 The Odyssey moved to the famous Shepperton Studios outside of London. Five sound stages were commandeered to complete the work on what became the most expensive production (on a per-hour basis) in the history of the television medium. This documentary tracks the extraordinary production -- from Turkey to Malta to Shepperton.

CPA Archive: Film: European	HIC HOC	Tape, Magnetic	Hic-Hoc	Hic-Hoc, April 3, 1995. Hic-Hoc: two different time spaces in the same place. HIC, here, four object manipulators. Little puppet devils taken out of their wooden boxes transported there by chance. We witness strange rituals of their customs regarding the taming of objects and we penetrate into the workings of astonishing mechanisms of animation of matter and perpetual movement. The disruption of the laws of gravity, the source of life, projects the actor and the spectator into a new vision of space, time and movement. Jérôme Thomas is the mastermind and choreographer of this visual quartet. HOC, there, we enter the burlesque and poetic universe of Pascal Lloret and Jérôme Thomas, a multifaceted and skin-deep dialogue between the pianist and the juggler, sound and gesture. A piano and bullets are the protagonists of this wordless story which shifts alternately into the complicity of the duo and the fever of the duel. Approach our weaknesses, touch our poverty with our fingertips, touch the void, hear the silence; and, thus, create the ephemeral point of contact of reality. Jérôme Thomas and Pascal Lloret are the project managers.

CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	HOUS SIN EATE	Videodisc, Digital	In the House of the Sin Eater	A man mourns his dead wife. He weeps at her bedside. Following ancient Welsh tradition, he performs a ritual that helps the dead release their obligations to this world. He bakes a loaf of bread and places it on the body of his dead beloved. In that half-space between the Living and the Dead, her sins are magically absorbed into the bread. "In the House of the Sin Eater" creates a strangely moving world from miniature sets and hand-operated marionettes. In this tiny dreamscape, a recent widower must carry his wife's sins to the Sin Eater's house deep inside a forbidding forest. Feared and reviled by the townspeople, the Sin Eater performs his duties without complaint. And in an act of acceptance and transformation, we discover that the Sin Eater is less to be feared than treasured.

CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	KUKL OLLI 1996 TAPE 1	Tape, Magnetic	Kukla, Fran and Ollie/"'Tis the Season to be Ollie"	Christmas is caroling and decorating the tree and wrapping presents. It's all here in this joyous story, except things somehow - and hilariously - don't go just right. Take the scrawy tree Ollie brings home. He'd bought a chocolate soda and hadn't enough money to buy a good tree. But wait! There's a rustle of music and behold! It's the Christmas Fairy (or is it Buelah?) After a little trouble remembering the magic words, she makes the skinny tree glow with lights and ornaments before she disappears. Now everyone can put their presents under the tree. Ollie has a special one for Fran. So does Kukla. But Fletcher Rabbit has a problem. How can he wrap a tuba? You'll just have to see the show to find out how he does it. Merry Christmas to all! Plus! "The Best of Buelah"
CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	KUKL OLLI 1996 TAPE 2	Tape, Magnetic	Kukla, Fran and Ollie/"Madame O's Merry Musicale"	A classical music musicale is a very serious undertaking, particularly when it stars that famous diva, Madame Ooglepuss. Everyone helps - with questionable results. Buelah follows Cecil Bill's instructions but manages to dump the velvet curtain into the orchestra pit. Fran can't find the flutist to accompany Madame Ooglepuss. Her ingenious solution hilariously saves the day. Taking the famous theater adage "break a leg" too literally with Madame Ooglepuss, Buelah almost causes the musicale to be postponed. This may not be a classic musicale, but it's a Kukla, Fran and Ollie classic of hilarity. Plus! "The Best of Fletcher"
CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	KUKL OLLI 1996 TAPE 3	Tape, Magnetic	Kukla, Fran and Ollie/"Get on the Dragon Wagon"	Have you ever wanted to run for fire chief or dog catcher or even mayor but didn't know how to get started? Here's the perfect answer - Ollie's very own Do-It-Yourself Campaign Kit. Kukla and Fran are skeptical, but Ollie's sure he has a winner. Watch him demonstrate how to deflect questions from reporters that no politician wants to answer. How do politicians smile all the time? Ollie's solution - a special set of false teeth. Pop them in your mouth and you can't stop smiling. A campaign song? Ollie's composed "Get on the Dragon Wagon." Who can lose with a song like this - especially if you're a dragon. You certainly can't lose with this fun campaign of laughs and songs from Kukla, Fran and Ollie. Plus! "The Best of Kukla"

Fran gets into the circus free when roustabout Ollie hires her to sell popcorn. And ringmaster Kukla keeps one act following another. Besides Buelah, who has an embarrassing off-day on the trapeze, there's Werner, the world's only trained worm, who blows a mean trumpet version of "My Country Tis of Thee." And clown Fletcher Rabbit scares the living daylights out of Buelah with the old snake-in-the-jar trick. It's a fun-filled day at the circus with Kukla, Fran and Ollie. Plus! A gypsy flamenco dancer, looking suspiciously like Buelah, whirls onto the stage to "Lady of Spain." The gypsy, gossip that she is, alerts Ferdinand that his Queen may have eyes for a certain sailor. Columbus appears (Kukla in a costume somewhat too large), and the Queen rescues her jewels from the pawn shop for him. After a near mutiny at sea, land is spotted by first mate Fletcher Rabbit. But where are the Indians to greet them? There's just Fran, in enormous sunglasses and passing out guides to Santa Barbara! This isn't a twist. Ollie's done a total rewrite! Sweet and elfin singing the lyrical hit "Hi-Lili, Hi-Lo," naive and earnest talking with the puppets, aglow with grace in the ballet dream sequence, Miss Caron makes Lili one of the most enchanting musical fables ever seen on screen. Based on a Paul Gallico story, the film unfolds in the bright atmosphere of a traveling French carnival. Here Lili becomes a waitress, but she is fired after one night -- for spending too much time watching Jean Pierre Aumont, the handsome magician with whom she is infatuated. Lili is grief-stricken until a lame puppeteer (Mel Ferrer) uses his little friends to woo her from her sorrow. Soon she is part of his act, childishly happy with the four puppets, but unable to deal with their moody master, whom she calls "the angry man." How Lili blossoms from adolescence to womanhood with the puppets as her guides makes for a beguiling, bittersweet movie every member of the family will adore!

With the help of Despina, the ladies' maid, Alfonso lays his plot. First he tells them that as officers, their lovers have been called up on duty; and as a part of the old man's plan, he introduces the sisters to two Albanians, who are, of course, Guglielmo and Ferrando disguised. After inner conflicts the two women succumb to the advances of the "Albanians," forcing Guglielmo and Ferrando to concede defeat. However, Don Alfonso reveals the plot to the two deceived ladies and they are reconciled with their original lovers.

He is rescued by three ladies, who show him a picture of the beautiful Pamina, and Tamino instantly falls in love. Protected by a golden flute, he sets off with the bird-catcher Papageno to rescue Pamina from the clutches of the sorcerer Sarastro. But the sorcerer is actually a wise priest, who tells Pamina that though she and Tamino are destined for each other, they must first prove their love. When the gods instruct Tamino to take a vow of silence, Pamina fears that all is lost and contemplates suicide, but she is comforted by kind spirits and finds new strength to aid Tamino through the trials of fire and water. Triumphing over all adversity, the lovers unite, as the forces of light banish the darkness, and the magic flute carries the final melody. Narrated by Sir Peter Ustinov

CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	MCGU PUPP DEMO 1997	Tape, Magnetic	Puppets & Demons	This is a peek at some early cinematic works by Patrick McGuinn. These ten award-winning short films use a blend of folkloric icons and modern dilemmas to tell their humorous, fresh and unique stories. See the oddities, mysticisms and boldness that would typicfy later works like DESERT SPIRITS and SUROH: ALIEN HITCHHIKER, films which have struck chords in the hearts of millions (through the enduring magic of the VCR). In a nationally sponsored Hostess Twinkies video competition, McGuinn's off-beat entries placed third, earning him a wristwatch, T-shirt, and FREE Twinkies -- more than he could possibly eat! Vincent, the id-like puppet doppelganger for the filmmaker, munches and sings his way through Twinkies, this program, and perhaps into your very psyche! One thing's certain: after viewing, you will feel as if you've had a friendly, intimate meeting with the person behind these films. You will have been exposed to the very essence of his distinctive obsessions. It may not be a place you want to go, but YOU are invited. Stella!, Gran'ma, and So Many People These three shorts, ostensibly celebrations of Twinkies created for a contest sponsored by Hostess, are in fact wickedly funny satires of commercialism, sex, and family values. Stella! and Gran'ma feature the Twinkie-crazed puppet Vincent, who first appeared in Say Thankyou, Please. Evolution A claymation comedy about the food chain. Won Best Animated Short award in the Arizona Film Festival when the filmmaker was just 11 years old. Satan's Game In this music video for the band Carrousel of Death, a lusty young hitchhiker thinks he's in for a good time when picked up by a blonde babe but soon discovers that he has just met the devil in flesh. SLEEPING BEAUTY In an enchanted land, the Queen is visited by a magical frog who gives her a rose -- the promise of her first-born. As time passes, the baby, Briar Rose, is born and a royal banquet is prepared in her honor. Twelves good fairies are invited, but when the chef's apprentice notices that one gold plate is missing, the King decides to remove one of the fairies from the guest list. At the banquet, the uninvited fairy places a curse on the child, declaring, "When she is 15 she will prick her finger on a spindle and die!" But one of the good fairies transforms the curse. "Instead of death, she will sleep for one hundred years, to be awakened only by the kiss of true love." The King then orders all the spindles to be destroyed, but one is left in an abandoned tower of the castle. On Briar Rose's 15th birthday, the evil fairy tricks her into pricking her finger. Briar Rose and everyone in the kingdom fall into a deep sleep. A hundred years later, a handsome prince enters the land. With one kiss, the Princess and the whole kingdom awaken.
CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	MGA LILI 1953	Tape, Magnetic	LiLi	Leslie Caron is radiant as Lili, the shy young orphan who learns the truth about love with the help of a crippled puppeteer. Sweet and elfin singing the lyrical hit "Hi-Lili, Hi-Lo," naive and earnest talking with the puppets, aglow with grace in the ballet dream sequence, Miss Caron makes Lili one of the most enchanting musical fables ever seen on screen. Based on a Paul Gallico story, the film unfolds in the bright atmosphere of a traveling French carnival. Here Lili becomes a waitress, but she is fired after one night -- for spending too much time watching Jean Pierre Aumont, the handsome magician with whom she is infatuated. Lili is grief-stricken until a lame puppeteer (Mel Ferrer) uses his little friends to woo her from her sorrow. Soon she is part of his act, childishly happy with the four puppets, but unable to deal with their moody master, whom she calls "the angry man." How Lili blossoms from adolescence to womanhood with the puppets as her guides makes for a beguiling, bittersweet movie every member of the family will adore!

A video recording of the production in the Salzburg Marionette Theatre. The action of The Marriage of Figaro is a continuation of the plot of The Barber of Seville several years later, and recounts a single "day of madness" (la folle giornata) in the palace of the Count Almaviva near Seville, Spain. Rosina is now the Countess; Dr. Bartolo is seeking revenge against Figaro for thwarting his plans to marry Rosina himself; and Count Almaviva has degenerated from the romantic youth of Barber into a scheming, bullying, skirt-chasing baritone. Having gratefully given Figaro a job as head of his servant-staff, he is now persistently trying to obtain the favors of Figaro's bride-to-be, Susanna. He keeps finding excuses to delay the civil part of the wedding of his two servants, which is arranged for this very day. Figaro, Susanna, and the Countess conspire to embarrass the Count and expose his scheming. He responds by trying to legally compel Figaro to marry a woman old enough to be his mother, but it turns out at the last minute that she really is his mother. Through Figaro's and Susanna's clever manipulations, the Count's love for his Countess is finally restored.

CPA Archive: Film: North and Central America	NA US BARN KELL 1987	Tape, Magnetic	Lou Kelly Show, The	"The Lou Kelly Show" was co-produced and developed by Dick Clark Productions and MCA-TV for late-night syndication. The personality of Lou Kelly was created by puppeteer Tim Barnes, whose performance was 90% ad-libbed. Assisting behind the desk is actress/puppeteer Cheryl Blaylock, giving an uncanny un-rehearsed supporting performance. The two, working only from instinct and a monitor, create a very real talk-show host and a very performance (sic), thanks to years of talk-show training, and experience ranging from street-theatre to Muppets- yet unbelievably, they had never met, worked with or even rehearsed with each other before. Produced in under three weeks, the original concept for the host was rejected, the puppet redesigned, the support puppeteer replaced, a Director signed the day before, and a script completed the morning of, then thrown out all together. There was almost no rehersal, not even a camera run-through. The final product is what you see - an essentially "live" performance created by the performers and the guests. Far from perfect, with "bloopers" and all, "The Lou Kelly" Show" made the final cut at the MATPE convention that year. Hand-carried in only hours before, and without so much as a press-kit, "Kelly" got 70% clearance on word-of-mouth, and the pilot episode. 120 shows were on the floor that year, and "Kelly " was one of only three that sold. The press was kind, giving "The Lou Kelly Show" wonderful reviews. A front which he held a year's pass. It was in Paris in 1927 that he created the miniature circus celebrated in this film - tiny wire performers, ingeniously articulated to walk on tightropes, dance, lift weights and engage in acrobatics in the ring. The Parisian avant-garde would gather in Calder's studio to see the circus in operation. It was, as critic James Johnson Sweeney noted, "a laboratory in which some of the most original features of his later work were to be developed." This film exudes the great personal charm of Calder himself, moving and working the tiny players like a ringmaster while his wife winds up the gramophone in the background. "The Circus" is now housed at the Whitney Museum in New York.

CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	NATI	Videodisc, Digital	Nativity, The	Between the twelfth and fourteenth centuries, miracle or mystery plays began in the churches of England and France. These pageants began with the nativity and then grew to other stories from the Bible. They were first performed by the priests but eventually the guilds took over their production, and the performances moved outside of the church and became more secular. Some early references to the figures called them "motions," an early word for puppet. In France, the story goes that these dramas were called "little Marys" or marionettes. The priests and later the guilds would set up stations and the dramas could be viewed throughout the church as the audience moved from station to station. Today you get to sit still, but we hope our little play moves you as well.

As she follows the elusive White Rabbit so begins this dream expedition into the landscape of childhood, through many dangerous adventures, and ultimately to her trial before the King and Queen of Hearts. Jan Svankmajer, the Czech master of animation, has fulfilled a lifetime ambition in this personal interpretation of Lewis Carroll's Alice in Wonderland. Svankmajer's alice remains true to the absurdity of Carroll's original, but bears the stamp of his own distinctive style and obsessions. Combining techniques of animation and live action, he gives to this classic tale of childhood fantasies a new and fascinating dimension.

CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	PN1979.S5 C498 DVD 2007	Videodisc, Digital	Chinese shadows: the amazing world of shadow puppetry in rural northwest China	'What I remember of seeing shadow puppet theatre the first time? Oh, such mystery it was!' Seventy-year old Hu Zhenming is a puppeteer and musician in Huanxian, a barren region in Gansu Province. In this splendid and nostalgic portrayal of an age-old village art we meet with Hu and his collegues, who introduce the world of Chinese shadow puppetry with plenty of passion. Their rough-hewn faces and images of the arid landscpae and the (equally unpolished) puppet performances determine the tone of this unique film. We follow the performers on their journey with a donkey from one village to the next, and doing shows in cave dwellings and in temples. We record the disappointment and sadness of these men over the gradual decline of a truly superb theatrical art. There's almost nobody left who would like to learn and pick up the trade. But the singing and music making during the shows is still amazingly passionate and energetic.

Collection	Object ID	Object Name	Title	Description
				The contrast may come as a bit of a show: on the one hand there are the finely carved and delicate shadow puppets, on the other the almost brutal force and wild shouting with which they are cast against the screen. The narrative figures, cut from animal skin, are hardly any less fantastic and capricious than the paintings of Hieronymus Bosch or Hokusai. Fortunately, a ray of hope remains for the traditional shadow theatre, as the scenes in a rural village school movingly illustrate.

Witty, well-informed and always spontaneous, Jack Paar was the embodiment of 'smart TV.' In 1957 he was hired to host TONIGHT on NBC and within a very few weeks he had invented the TV talk show. Always outspoken and emotional--no matter who the guest was--you couldn't take your eyes off Jack Paar. Over the next five years, he took the art of conversation to the highest levels, becoming an enormously influential television personality. In 1962, he left the Tonight Show, bringing his groundbreaking blend of talk, comedy and music to primetime. Three years later, he walked away from TV stardom while still on top This disc features just a few of the highlights from his legendary programs, featuring Muhammad Ali & Liberace, Woody Allen, The Beatles, Fidel Castro, Bill Cosby, Judy Garland & Robert Goulet, John Kennedy, Robert Kennedy, Oscar Levant, Vaughn Meader, The Muppets, Richard Nixon, The Smothers Brothers and Jonathan Winters.

Luckily, Granny arrives and saves the day by baking her World Famous Gah-Loppy No More Floppy Clown Bouncy Bars at her Cabbage Club Cooking School! Turns out that too many doughnuts yesterday plus forgetting to eat a good breakfast were to blame for floppy epidemic. 3) Fibberish Gibberish Loonette is surprised to discover Molly's miffed at her for telling a tall tale. But when Molly starts talking about Dustbunnies on her fishing lure, it's Loonette who's not biting! Loonette sings "I Don't Believe in Dustbunnies," while Molly insists they're real! No wonder. Wuzzy Dustbunny is making an unseen appearence on the couch. Uncle Chester is right when he warns we must be careful with little fibs that can be misunderstood. Back on the Couch, a story about Bradley the Brave shows that telling the truth is always the best idea.

In this latest offering by the great Czech surrealist filmmaker Jan Svankmajer, modern-day Prague is the setting for the story of six ordinary if somewhat seedy individuals who, with almost no dialogue, obsessively and painstakingly perpare their sexual "feasts." Like fastidious but inspired chefs they concoct - with the aid of the most electic array of objects, animals, devices and processes - an orgasmic meal of hilarious and literally explosive results. A postwoman, shopkeeper, television presenter, detective and two off apartment dwellers secretly plunder and pilage their environments in search of their magical ingredients. As their solitary paths crisscross, we see how Svankmajer condenses the sexual, the social and the political in a society still breaking with the habits of a sexually puritanical past. Svankmajer relates it all with mischievous misanthropy and a brilliant array of live actaion filmmaking, special effects and animation techniques.

The Raven is an adaptation of the poem in which one man's self-induced torture over the loss of his lover manifests itself and pushes him over the edge of sanity. The Tell Tale Heart features Paul Naschy as the man who begins to hear the heartbeat of a man he murdered.
CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	PT8175.O35 C37 DVD 1994	Videodisc, Digital	Castle of Holstebro, The		The sequence in HAMLET which begins with the dialogue of the gravediggers and concludes with the outburst of the Prince against Laertes has two more protagonists: Yorick and Ophelia, the skull of the jester and the maid from whose flesh violets will grow. Two invisible characters: the others speak about them and show their lifeless remains on the stage. But the weeping of the nobels and the disenchanted song of the buffoons will be extinguished and the fury of history will roll away, leaving deserted and silent the moorland by the North sea which human beings have turned into a cemetery. Then Yorick and Ophelia will celebrate their wedding in the moonlight: serene and incestuous wedding of the Mother with the Child, of the Father with the Daughter, of the Old Man with the Virgin. Does Death, a grotesque Don Juan, seduce the girl, as in a Holbein etching? Of does the woman feed the child Death at her breast, nurturing it through the wheel of rebirth. Is this, then, what THE CASTLE OF HOLSTEBRO, a joyful performance, is about?

CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	PUPP 2011	Videodisc, Digital	Puppet	An illuminating documentary, Puppet is a fascinating look at the history of American puppetry as well as its current renaissance. At the center of the film is Dan Hurlin's "Disfarmer," a complex puppet work. A broad look at the fraught history of American puppetry (its marginalization as children's theater and its sudden explosion as high art) with an intimate thread following Dan Hurlin, a downtown artist who is creating a complex puppet work about an eccentric, Depression-era photographer. Dan has just recovered from a scorching New York Times review, which forced his last show out of theaters prematurely. Now he faces a wider backlash against puppetry, suggesting an eerie parallel between himself and his new puppet-subject - a portrait photographer whose stunning body of work was very nearly lost forever.

Exuberant folk music, medieval furniture that magically transforms like pop-up books, and a fascinating array of puppets (that range in size from 6 inches to 6 feet!) come to life in this beautiful and sumptuous theatrical production. Tea at the Palace tells the engaging story of a Tsar overcoming his servants' silly ideas of class prejudice and male superiority. First off, a Russian peasant is dragged before the Tsar's court and charged with treason simply for making tea! While the Tsar is sorting out that mess, he himself becomes smitten with a charmingly clever maid beneath his caste, and meddlesome servants just make things worse with their ridiculous antics. This hilarious and heartwarming story of humanity, equality and love has long been a favourite of parents and children alike.

CPA Archive: Film: North and Central America	SHIRLEY MAGIC PAL	Archive	John Shirley's puppetry on The Magic Palace	John Shirley performs puppetry act on The Magic Palace television show. The Magic Palace was a Canadian television series, produced and hosted by Dale Harney, in the late 1970s and early 1980s, which was an inspiration for a generation of magicians. In an age before YouTube and the Internet, the show gave viewers a broad sampling of magic acts from North America and Europe in an unprecedented scale. John Shirley was from Chicago, Illinois. It is believed that Shriley performed on a variety of shows during his career, including the Ed Sullivan show—and of course, on The Magic Palace. Dana Hanson, who was a child when first meeting John Shirley in Southern Wisconson at the Walworth CO and the Wisconsin State Fair shares these memories of John Shirley: "John was a master balloon artist and magician, but his gift was marionettes. All the characters in this clip were designed and made by Shirley." Dana continues: "The short clips are word for word as I remember them. His show was normally ended with a large about 3-4" skeleton puppet. It would dance and fly all over the stage...the puppet was very elaborate and could be separated into pieces. Head, spine, arms, legs could all be controlled separately."

CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	SPIR MASK 1992	Tape, Magnetic	Spirit of the Mask, The		"The Spirit of the Mask" unlocks the secret world of the Northwest Coast Indians, revealing the myths, rituals and ceremonies that give rise to both powerful art and a special understanding of man's relationship to the natural and supernatural words. This exploration of the spiritual and psychological powers of the mask features dramatic, rarely seen ceremonies and also tells the story of the Northwest Coast peoples' struggle to preserve their sacred traditions against the onslaught of European colonialism. Along the way we learn how the mask, even in contemporary culture, enables us to embody our myths and our dreams...and to give us the power of healing. The host of this extraordinary program is anthropologist Wade Davis, author of the best-selling book "The Serpent and the Rainbow," which is now a popular feature film.

Kids can watch as the "Drug-Free Kids" Puppets -- singing exciting fast-paced music video style songs, teach her how to stop and listen to her "Bodytalk," so she can choose what is best for herself.
CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	STIL 2002	Videodisc, Digital	Stiltwalkers	A solitary fisherman carves and sketches to pass the time. But this day his drawings seemto have a life of their own. Fish fly off the pages and leap into the sea. An island appears on the watery expanse, and the poles around his boat begin to move ominously. His own creation seems to give rise to a strange, surreal and ultimately fragile two-dimensional world, guarded by a tribe of stiltwalkers. Stiltwalkers is a parable about the creative power of the mind. Rendered with extraordinary eye to detail, it is a world where people and objects flow fluidly between tow and three dimensions. Filmed without words, the music and soundtrack heighten the mystery.

CPA Archive: Film: European	SVAN LEKC FAUS 1994	Tape, Magnetic	Lekce Faust	Jan Svankmajer's long-awaited follow-up to his acclaimed Alice is an equally astounding version of the myth of Dr. Faustus. Merging live action with stop-motion and claymation animation, Svankmajer has created an unsettling universe presided over by Diabolic life-size marionettes and haunted by skulking human messengers from Hell. Svankmajer's Faust (movingly incarnated by one of the Czech Republic's finest actors, Petr Cepek) is an ordinary, inquisitive Everyman who, upon exiting a Prague subway station, is handed a map that draws him to his doom. Led to an abandoned theater he finds a copy of Goethe's Faust, begins to read aloud, and unwittingly summons up a devil who offers him everything his heart desires in return for his soul. With breathtaking rapidity Faust's journey takes him to the tops of mountains, drops him in the middle of lakes and sends him out onto unsuspecting streets of Prague, peopled with shape-changing demons and puppet-versions of Goethe's characters, Svankmajer's Tour-De-Force is alternately hilarious and shocking, always unique, and ultimately unforgettable.

Tomorrow We Disappear follows three of Kathputli s most talented performers as they wrangle with the reality of their approaching eviction: puppeteer Puran Bhatt, magician Rahman Shah, and acrobat Maya Pawar. The lm chronicles a turning point in the lives of these performers, with the hopes of anticipating what s to come in India s future and preserving what is being left behind.
CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	TOPO MARQ 1990	Tape, Magnetic	Marquis	Marquis is based on the writings of the Marquis de Sade, and conceived by satirist-caricaturist Roland Topor (the French Jim Henson). Managing to be both visually elegant and wildly raunchy, Jami Bernard of the "New York Times" says MARQUIS is, "probably the strangest, most imaginatively off-beat film you may see this year." Set in the Bastille prison in 1789 on the eve of the French Revolution, the Marquis, an aristocratic canine imprisoned for blasphemy, engages Colin, his animated, erect penis, in philosophic debates about art, politics, and sexual freedom. Surrounded by a barnyard cornucopia: the prison governor (a masochistic rooster), his mistress (Juliette, a whip-wielding filly), a lascivious prison guard (a rat) and the victim of a royal rape (Justine, a cow), the Marquis is at the center of the storm of the cultural and political revolution.

When she orders breakfast, she discovers that all the food in Weinerville has been stolen. Eric Von FirstenSecond, the space villain, admits that he stole the food-- as part of his evil plan to take over Weinerville. Without breakfast the citizens of Weinerville will not be able to learn. Once the brain power of everyone in Weinerville drops, he'll attack. Dottie asks Commander Ozone to save Weinerville. The commander, with the help of his computer, discovers the components of a healthy breakfast-- foods from the Five Food Groups. Ozone then sets off for the Milky Way to get food for Weinerville. Eric lets Dottie know he's ready to attack, as the citizens of Weinerville quickly lose their brain power. Just in time, Ozone beams down nutirious foods. As people eat breakfast, Eric sees that the brain power in Weinerville is rising -- and he is defeated. Dottie proclaims today, and everyday, EAGAHBEDD (ee-ag-ah-bed)-- "Eat a Good and Healthy Breakfast Every Day" Day.

"Let's get that Beetlejuice person," they decide. So they contact the afterlife's freelance bio-exorcist to scare off the family. And everyone gets more than he, she or it bargained for! You'll get more, too. More comedy. More scares. More outlandish, gleeful wanna-see fun than ever. Because "Beetlejuice" is the name in laughter from the hereafter...and for a long, long time to come. Director Tim Burton, who guided Pee-wee Herman in "Pee-wee's Big Adventure," now teams with another irrepressible talent, Michael Keaton ("Night Shift", "Mr. Mom", "Clean and Sober"). As Beetlejuice, Keaton is a jangled juggernaut of jokes, jolts, and jive. He hurls one-liners. Spins into grotesque forms. Gobbles insects. And just can't leave the ladies (living or dead) alone. Alec Baldwin ("Knots Landing", "Married to the Mob"), Geena Davis ("The Fly",

CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	VINT CLAY EAST 1990	Tape, Magnetic	Claymation Easter	From the creation the The California Raisins, this Emmy Award-winning Claymation special breathes personality and life into the delightful characters of this bunny tale as it tells the story of the villanous Wilshire Pig, who for his own greedy purposes has kidnapped the Easter Bunny, and will stop at nothing to become his replacement. Following numerous, madcap (and disastrous for Wilshire) adventures, the real Easter Bunny is returned to his throne and everybody lives happily ever after -- except Wilshire Pig, of course, who, hopefully, will try never to be bad again.
CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	VINT RIP WINK 1987	Tape, Magnetic	Rip Van Winkle	"There is magic in the Catskill mountains..." So begins the enchanting story of Rip Van Winkle, a kindly but lazy fellow who stops for a short nap on his hike in the mountains, only to awaken to a place and time unfamiliar to him. When Rip returns to his village, he discovers that he has been asleep not just for an hour or two, but for many, many years! Golden is proud to bring you classic tales presented in Claymation by Will Vinton, the premier artisan of clay animation. Each video follows in detail the magic written into the original story. Noted narrators and original music make these tapes perfect for family viewing...treasured favorites for both children and adults!

Commercial	SMOO 2002			-show host Rainbow Randolph puke purple. Ever since that plush, fuchsia-hued, platitude -spouting Smoochy the Rhino started Jiggy Ziggy-dancing in Randolph's time slot, he has just one mad goal: turn the rhino into a dead duck. Danny DeVito, director of the darkly twisted "Throw Momma from the Train" and "The War of the Roses", skewers children's television in the gleefully wicked "Death to Smoochy". Robin Williams, his famed wit set at warp, plays ranting Randolph. Edward Norton is the high-minded goodnik whose righteous-rhino creation becomes a sensation. And Catherine Keener portrays a jaded exec who likes successful kid-show hosts in, let's say, a grown-up way. Now add an oily agent (DeVito), a snarky honcho (Jon Stewart) and all manner of lunacy and you're ready to either do the Ziggy Jiggy, or to take the rhino by the horn.
CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	WARN RAT TALE 1997	Tape, Magnetic	Rat's Tale, A	Young Montague's warnings are ignored when he learns that humans are planning to tear down the rat homes on the pier to make room for a parking lot. CPA Archive: Film: Commercial	WHO AFRA OPER 1973	Tape, Magnetic	Who's afraid of opera?	The acclaimed soprano Joan Sutherland and her adorable puppet friends present mini-versions of two of the world's greatest opera favorites, "La Traviata" and "Daughter of the Regiment," in a program specially designed to be enjoyed by both children and adults alike. Joining the great soprano in these unique programs are three enchanting puppets: Sir William, a scholarly old goat; his nephew, little Billy; and the very boisterous lion Rudi. Joan Sutherland introduces the opera plots to her funny pals, and at key moments she returns to unfold more of the story. As Violetta in La Traviata, Joan is a beautiful Parisian courtesan in love with a penniless nobleman. Joan also plays Donizetti's Marie, found as an infant on the battlefield and adopted by a whole regiment of adoring fathers.
